June is Cancer Survivorship Awareness Month

Dear North Dakota Physicians,

The last of four articles this month focused on cancer survivorship addresses survivorship resources. Cancer survivors and those who advocate for them are often lost in transition.

Cancer survivorship is a relatively new construct; it is important for professionals, young and old alike, to be well educated on this phase of cancer care. The North Dakota Cancer Coalition (NDCC) Survivorship Committee has created a list of websites to help meet this need.

These resources are specific for survivors as well as for healthcare professionals. They include recommendations for general information screening, follow-up care, support, and coping strategies. These websites are informative and easy to access.

Please visit the NDCC website www.ndcancercoalition to view Healthcare Professionals and Survivor Links and Resources and learn ways to better assist your cancer patients.
